style counsel

What Hollywood secrets should you know to make a stylish walk down your red carpet? According to L.A.-based Julie Hewett—the makeup artist for Annette Bening and Hilary Swank, and creator of Julie Hewett Los Angeles cosmetics—a subtle brush of bronzing powder under your cheekbones, chin and across your eyelids will help you look sculpted for the cameras. "And it warms you up instantly," she adds. Then get a bridal glow by pressing a face and body shimmer, such as her "Shimmy," on your cheekbones, clavicle and even in your décolleté. "You'll look exactly like who you are—but the idealized movie star version!"
